MISS ELSIE M. DAVIS HAS BEEN FOUND ALIVE AND IS RAPIDLY RECOVERING FROM HER AWFUL ORDEAL.

Went to the Nearby Woods For Rest and Became Lost. Her Own Story in Brief.

It was about 4 p. m. last Thursday that the glad news that Elsie Davis was found alive was rushed into Bethel from Howe hill by Mr. M. D. Sturtevant, by auto, manned by his son Walter. The news was carried to the Meriden, Springer Co. mill from whence also blasts of the big steam whistle went forth to an anxiously waiting public.

Not since the days of 1891 it ever have the people of this calm and colored town been so completely stirred up as over the disappearance of Miss Elsie Davis, and from Sunday evening, when the public first heard of the affair until she was found, all thought was of her and all attention was given to her recovery.

A remarkable feature of the vigorous search which was made, was that despite the fact that scarcely a single ray of encouragement or the slightest hope on which to work rewarded the tireless searchers from hour to hour or day to day, yet persistency added to persistency, enthusiasm to enthusiasm, each succeeding day bringing results from larger radii until the last day when the woods and surrounding highways were literally alive with men.

As stated in last week's issue, not the slightest clue to guide the searchers was obtained until a comb and woman's tracks were found in the woods on Howe hill, on Wednesday. The trail led in the vicinity where the comb was found was thoroughly searched but no further trace of her was obtained. The belief, however, that the tracks were not long made prompted another effort to secure a bloodhound.

E. O. Varney, of Harland, owner of Hero, known as "Harland's famous bloodhound" was called by phone and the situation placed before him. Mr. Varney professed a serious doubt as to the dog's ability to pursue a trail from a scent as old as it seemed this one must be, but yet said that it would not be impossible to be of some assistance. Varney was asked to come with all haste. Accordingly he procured a automobile and started at the dawn of day on Thursday, arriving in Bethel at 10 o'clock.

The dog was taken at once to the woods and shown a trail that had been struck by searchers on Thursday morning and gotten herself so completely disoriented that it was useless from the first. But the girl had not been there as the dog showed no signs of having the scent. He hunted faithfully for nearly two hours circling hither and yon but with no result. This trail was, therefore, abandoned and the hunt was taken to the vicinity where the comb was found. Here, near the brook where the girl doubtless went for a drink, the animal picked up the scent and began his work at once. Although the trail was an old one and a difficult one to follow, yet he pursued it faithfully, giving the owner the assurance that he had located the path taken by the owner of the shoe from which he took the scent on which to work.

Shortly after the trail was taken and had been pursued in more or less of a circular course an important discovery was made by the searchers who had been given renewed attention to the area in the fading of some of the girl's clothing, consisting of coat, shoes and stockings. These were dripping with water and had apparently been hung up to dry.

There was a feeling that some time had elapsed since the girl removed these and with the fading of them naturally came a feeling that the girl would not be found alive, coupled with the feeling that the end of the search was near. An automobile was rushed to the place for a physician and Dr. Tibbetts and Tuesday were seen on the scene. The attention of the men was directed to the locality where the clothing was found. Fully 150 men at once began sweeping the woods while scores of many more guarded the high ways.

It was about 7:30 a. m. when a shout of rapid movement followed by three more led the multitude that the girl was found, and word was rushed along the lines that she was alive and perched in a large pine tree nearly twenty feet from the ground. Her friends spoke to her but she gave them no recognition and it was necessary to ascend the tree and remove her by force. Under the direction of Drs. Tibbetts and Treadwell, assisted by several of the searching party, she was removed from the tree, taken to an automobile in waiting and rushed to her home. Although she paid practically no attention to those about her, she did give some signs of recognizing her father and brother, but in a very exhausted condition. She took such nourishment as was offered her and rested well. Dr. Tibbetts gave the opinion that she had not wandered about to such an extent as had been supposed, that she had stood the ordeal remarkably well and would recover with the necessary rest.

HER STORY.

Following a good night's rest her mind became clear. On the following day she talked very freely with Mr. Davis and told him with some detail of her awful experience. She said that she had been told by her friends that she ought to be more in the open air, and on that pleasant Sunday morning she went out into the woods to spend a little time in the out of doors, and in her roaming about she lost her way and became much alarmed over her condition and lost control of herself. It seems that she wandered about in the nearby vicinity the balance of Sunday and Monday and on Tuesday about the time of the shower went down across the meadows and proceeded into the woods where she was found. She remembered crossing the highway and seemed to be completely lost and had no control of herself. Said she had dreamt more or less, that she would lie down on the ground, go to sleep and have a terrible dream, always concerning her lost condition, that she would awaken with an impelling power to reach away from her present condition. Accordingly she proceeded and a automobile and started at the dawn of day on Thursday, arriving in Bethel at 10 o'clock.

PART FOURTEEN.
"August 12, 1891. J. G. Rich, of Bethel, has received an invitation from friends in Bangoley, to spend the month of August in Billy Soule's camp at Pleasant Island, with the freedom of the Lake steamer and hotel, and with the railroad from Bethel and return, which he proposes to accept. Mr. Rich is one of the oldest hunters of Bangoley. Billy Soule's father was one of the old hunters of the Bangoley at the time Mr. Rich hunted in that country. All the old hunters are laid under the sod except Mr. Rich who killed over 50 moose, 73 bears, about 400 Canada lynx and several hundred deer and other game in proportion. It is a proper courtesy to invite the old hunter to look over his old hunting ground once more.

"A Bangoley man drove his team out to Franklin, 22 miles, because there he could get two more pounds of sugar for a dollar than at home."

"August 19. There are over a thousand summer visitors in Bethel.

"Friend Abel, of East Denmark, got tired of having the cow switch her tail in his face while he was milking, so he got a piece of rope and tied the tail to his boot strap. The cow did not like this arrangement and she yanked Abel all over the yard. As the Bridgton News puts it, the cow raised Cain and came near killing Abel."

"August 26. Mr. D. G. Berry, of Andover, keeps a flock of 75 choice sheep, and although the price of wool is low, averaging about 25 cents, he finds this form of stock the best paying of any he kept. He has a hill pasture well watered and shaded, and instead of letting his choice ewes take care of themselves a week of fortnight at a time, he looks after them daily, as constantly as he does his cows. It is a mistake to know it and hunt it up and returns it to the dock if no harm has come to it.

"Perry Walker, the ice boy, only fourteen years old, is one of South Portland's smartest lads. He has more than one hundred customers to whom he furnishes ice regularly.

"The Roxbury correspondent of the Oxford Democrat says: 'I moved into this town in 1853. I have no doubt that ten gallons of liquor were drunk there where one is now. Probably the difference is much greater, but I put it within bounds. The baneful condition of the people is very much improved by the change.'

"Sept. 3. Gould's Academy, Bethel, closed Tuesday week, with fifty-three pupils in charge of Prof. A. T. Hall, and an excellent corps of assistants.

"Geo. A. Grover, of West Bethel received $250 for strawberries raised upon his small acre of land.

"Thursday the Ladies' Union club of Bethel held a lawn festival. They have now in their treasury $1000 toward building the Garland Memorial chapel."

"Sept. 16. Two young men, affiliated recently with a mass which was swimming in Umbagog lake. He was seven feet high and weighed about 1800 pounds. He drowned off exactly 800 lbs. They sold the meat for 25 cents a pound. Each mother had five branches."

"Sept. 23. It is rumored that a new enterprise is to be started in Andover, a mill at Ellis Falls. If the scheme is carried out, it will utilize a large quantity of lumber.

"Stratton reports an unusually large number of peddlers, as many as three calling at houses in one day.

"Mrs. Martha Barlett has presented to the town of Bethel a stone water trough, that cost $200.

"Mrs. Olive Mills, of Norway, who will be 95 in November next, is still very active, says the Oxford Democrat. Doing considerable work about the house, and often taking trips of several miles.

"The Bethel west corn factory closed up business for the season last Thursday, having put up some over 500,000 ears.

BETHEL TO HAVE ELEGANT HOTEL.

Prof. W. R. Chapman Is Under the Proposition, Which Is Sufficient Guaranty That Success Will Result.

Two weeks ago the Citizen, though it did not don a mourning costume, did manifest something of a mourning spirit occasioned by the loss of Prospect Hotel. Our clouds were not entirely without a silver lining, however, for in the midst of our moments of apparent remorse came an inspired faith that good must tower over the ruins of evil and in that faith we were prompted to this ponder.

We would not, however, leave our readers to assume that fate can thus seal our destiny, for out from the ashes there can and must come another hotel which may, we hope, and confidently expect, be better and more grand than the one that has gone.

There is no grander location for a magnificent hotel in the whole White Mountain system than the very spot on which Prospect Hotel stood, and from what seems a present calamity let us hope may spring a hotel which shall be a fitting companionpiece for those ideal surroundings.

Little did we realize when the foregoing was written that a mighty busy bee was buzzing in the bosom of Prof. Wm. R. Chapman and that already visions of a magnificent hotel which should be a credit to those surroundings and a godsend to our town had already assumed tangible form in the mind of this enterprising townsman.

But such was the case. And to make a long story short, Prof. Chapman has purchased the hotel property and proposes to build one of the finest hotels in the East providing such encouragement and consideration as the importance of his enterprise merits is forthcoming at the hands of his fellow townsman.

Prof. Chapman is a man who does not operate on low levels nor do things at halves. He is a man fully endowed with that genuine Yankee enthusiasm which is sure to bid success perch upon his banners in every undertaking which he takes up.

He not only gives several interesting illustrations of the different phases of work and made an earnest appeal for the support of all in sympathy with the work which the League is carrying forward so successfully.

He will call to Bethel this week one of the best architects in the city of New York and plans will be drawn for one of the most hotels in all the East. It is not Prof. Chapman's mind to build a magnificent hotel but a magnificent business.

It will, however, have not less than 45 rooms and will be so placed as to be an addition can be really made to the business of the town.

The fact that Prof. Chapman is in touch at all times with a class of wealthy men in America's metropolis elsewhere, men who spend fortunes in recreation, together with the enterprise and enthusiasm as above referred to which characterize the man, insures to the start the success of the enterprise and the people of Bethel may congratulate themselves that the Professor's banquet contained the best of that he has entered the hotel game.

Here is the Citizen's good wish. Good luck and save your cold water to make the thirst of guests of the new hotel.

The post office at Bryant's Pond was broken into and the safe blown open about 1:30 a. m. Wednesday. Mr. Mark Allen discovered the men and arrested Mr. Jas. L. Bowker, the postmaster. When they arrived on the scene the work had been accomplished and the men were leaving. Something like a dozen shots were fired by the breakers, one hitting Mr. Bowker in the leg.

It is thought there were either four or five men, but in the darkness it was hard to tell. They escaped and men were searching the woods for them Wednesday. People were notified along the line and freight trains were watched in hopes that they might be discovered.

SENATOR FRYE PASSED AWAY

At His Home in Lewiston on Tuesday.

Hon. Wm. F. Frye, Maine's Senator, United States Senator died suddenly at his home in Lewiston, Tuesday afternoon at the age of 81 years.

He had been in failing health for some time and for the last week his condition had been serious. Tuesday he ate his breakfast as usual but appeared weaker and for the first time in several days remained in bed. At about 3 P. M. he suffered a severe chill. This was followed by a general relaxation and he sank rapidly until the end, which came suddenly.

Senator Frye has for 40 long years been a member of the Nation's Congress, having served 10 years in the House of Representatives and 30 years in the Senate. Few have had more to do with the shaping of the affairs of the Nation during the past two score years than has he.

In the loss of Senator Frye Maine loses the last of that remarkable coterie of men which began with Hannibal Hamlin, included Blaine, Reed, Hale, Hoar, Dingley, and Littlefield and ended with himself. His loss is a distinct loss to the State and Nation, and the vacancy made by his illness and death will not soon if ever be readily filled.

His successor will be appointed by Governor Plafard. Several candidates are already in sight and when the appointment is made each of Maine's Delegation in the upper branch of the Nation's councils will be Democratic.

and contains the other. He then gave very earnest and logical reference to the campaign of right against wrong which is being fought in the State of Maine, gave an earnest appeal to the people of Maine to stand true to the great principles of temperance which have been a part of our very life for half a century and by maintaining by our votes the law which the combined liquor forces are fighting to overthrow, not only save the good name and fame of our proud State but render valuable and incalculable assistance to our sister States and the world in the same great fight that all are having and must ever have against the rum power.

He also defined the work of the League of which he is secretary, telling of the work along the line of securing, preserving and enforcing Sunday laws, giving several interesting illustrations of the different phases of work and made an earnest appeal for the support of all in sympathy with the work which the League is carrying forward so successfully.

He will call to Bethel this week one of the best architects in the city of New York and plans will be drawn for one of the most hotels in all the East. It is not Prof. Chapman's mind to build a magnificent hotel but a magnificent business.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Peoria, Ill. - "I wish to let every one know what Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies have done for me."

"For two years I have been suffering from the most terrible female troubles. I was told I had to have an operation, and the only remedy was the use of a knife. My mother brought me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today I am a healthy woman. For making me feel better, I suffered from inflammation, and your Vegetable Compound is a cathartic. Any one wishing to know what your medicines have done for me can get it from any druggist or by writing to me. You can read my testimonial in any way you wish, and I will be glad to answer letters."

Mrs. CHRISTINA REED, 105 Mount Vernon, Peoria, Ill.
